called the city of homes. While we shall continue these illustration we have not the space to spare in a descrip tion of each. But as our city attorney, the Hon. James L. Dyer took pos ression last Thursday the of fourth home he has built in Wichita we will essay a brief description of it in the absence of a cut. This new home is on up per Emporia avenue, fronts to the east, on a plat of ground which is demarked by a finely molded serpentine curb of white stone the front and inner walks being tessetated pavement of black and white dismond quares. The build ng itself is wood stand ir g fifty feet high from the pavement to the me of the roof, its outside dimer sions being 43x64 feet, about the east and south front of which sweep a highly ornamental porch whose roof forms a complete balcony sround the two fronts of the upper story rooms. The style of the architecture is of the composite, the Queen Anne predeminat ing, with gothic roof broken up into a num ber of angles and Romanesque curves The outside combination of ors are very barmonious ing out the beautiful details of the hous in a menner so charming that they must be seen to be appreciated. As for the inside of this house we thought of describing it in detail, but space forbids more than a brief glance. The house throughout is flaished in native woods, some of them very bighly pelished, eleven foot ceilings on first floor and ten foot ceilings on second floor, attic eight and basement eight feet each, with hot and cold water everywhere, marble basins in all of the chambers and ges and electric call bells, the whole establishment being heated by the Richard Boynton largtains six fine chambers, each room with

THE COURTS. DISTRICT COURT.

The verdict of the jury in the case of Aaron McKinstry vs. Miller & Dunbar, was in favor of the plaintiff giving lam the $95 asked for in his petition. A new trial was granted in State vs. 1. B. Erbart. The defendant in this case was charged with forgery. A check drawn by Mr. Hinton in favor of a lumber company for $81 had been given him. It is alleged that he erased the "or order" written above "or bearer" on the check and was paid the amount for which it called at the bank. He was tried during this term of the court and found guilty. John Walden, a colored man, convicted of burglary and larcency received a sentence of five years at hard labor in the penitentiary. Walden was the man who broke into Munson & McNamara's store clothing and fancy articles. The somewhat remarkable and interesting case of the state vs. Jack True, was terminsted yesterday in the sentencing of the defendant to the state penitentiary. He was, it will be remembered, convicted of manalaughter in the third degree. The punishment by the statutes in such cases provided is from three to five years at hard work in the penitentlary. Judge Wall assessed the maximum pensity, and so Jack True received a sentence of five years.
